AN APOLOGY.

OPIUM FARM that is in any way reprehonsible; and further, that he has all along been doing his best, honestly and faithfully, for the benefit of the OHEANG TEK

AUGUSTUS PRANCIS PRILLIP PEPLOW. the Assize Court, Singapore, on the 17th inst., was charged with culpable hemicide not amounting to murder, and also with committing a rach not. The orrenmetances of the case briefly are that Peplow, who is an official dog-killer, going along the Changie Road in the dusk of evening, saw comething up a tree which he took to be monkey. He shot at it and killed it. The supposed monkey turned out to be a Malay man. The jury roturned a verdict of 'no guilty on both counts.

HARD LINES FOR THE LIZARD. -The London and China Express says :- A woman named J no Rowe, residing at Marazion, in Cornwall, has for several years suffered from violent pains in the stomach, from which she has been unable to obtain any relief, although she has been continually under modical treatment. On the 12th inst. after taking some medicine, she had a severe attack of vomiting, in the course of which she threw up a living lizard from four to five inches in length. Dr J. Mudge, who has been the woman's medical attendant, has preserved the lizard, which he believes must have been in her stomach for

A VERY curious Chinese coromony took place in Selegie Road, Singapore, on the 17th inst, when the models of all the property belonging to the late Mr Lim Eng-Keng were consigned to the flames. The models were rather large, and took the form. of houses, shops and even to the pair of liorses and carriage possessed by the deceased Chinaman. Some of them were very handsome; and it was said that the cost of the lot amounted to something like $200. A function took place in the house early in the evening, and about 10.30 p.m. the models were brought out into the street. The match was then applied and in a lew minutes they were reduced to ashes.

In the course of an interview, 'General! Booth, speaking of his experiences in Australia, gave a good testimonial to the industry of the Chinaman. He said: - I rode thousands of miles up and down your country-no I said to them in Melbourne-and the only patches which I saw really cultivated belonged to the Chinamen. And what is the secret of the Chinaman, the secret which will make him dispute the mastery of the world yet with the Anglo-Saxon ? Only work, And the secret of misery all the world over it want of workwant, sometimes of the opportunities of sometimes of the habit of work. sometimes of both. In over-crowded London, in densely-populated India, in the Australian wilds, it is only work that is wanted.

LAT year marked a retrograde movement in regard to temperance, and the Excise returns for the year are not calculated to raise the hopes of testotallers and their friends throughout the country. The consumption of spirits last year in the United Kingdom amounted to 30,744,209 gallons, or 1.333.778 gallons more than the quantity consumed in 1890. On the other hand, the augmentation in the consumption of beer is rather below the average, being only 430.488 barrels more than the roturns show for 1890. England and Wales take the lead, of co rae, in this official record of the nation's partiality for stimulants. Thus we find that, with the aid of the Principal ity, the people of this country consumed 1,176,751 gallons of spirits in 1891 more than they drank in 1890.

ONE of the chief objects of the visit of Commodore de Richelieu to Senggora (says the Singapore Free Press) is to examine into the question of a site for a new lighthouse to be erected there in view of the future importance of that port as a result of the construction of the Kedali-Senggora railway. There are two islands off the month of the channel which help to shield the anchorage at Senggora from the swell of the N. E. monsoon; and it is either upon one of these or upon a bluff on the mainland to the south that the most favourable position for a lighthouse will be found. It might be possible to further improve the anchorage by running a breakwater between the two islands already mentioned. This would afford an extengive shelter for ships in the roadstead which has a sufficient depth to accommodate the class of vessels that would be put on the run between Bangkok and Senggors.

The question of safe navigation during fog in Hongkong waters has been brought up by two or three correspondents. One of these writes :- I think it is a disgrace to a colony like Hongkong, which has such a vast amount of shipping trade, to have ever That it is always a difficult and risky task atructing them to exhort the people growing built light-houses without placing fog signals on them. What is the use of those oil to light them, and considering the large surplus of cash in hand and the heavy lightdees ships have to pay, proper fog signals ought to be placed on all light-houses as the forgy season has already commenced. If Mr Mackintosh and the Chamber of Commerce will represent the matter to the Hongkong G recoment and get them to place the necessary for signal on D'Aguilar and the other light houses under Colonial prindiction, they will be doing good for all thipping companies trading to Mongkong. - Singapore Press,

That I see you express a hope the shuffling of official cards will enable His Excellency to do away, if not with the post of Assistant Harbour-Master, then with that of Correspondence Clerk at the Public Works Department.

That it is not likely His Excellency will be able to do so ontil at least the regulation sularies and half-salaries bave run off, because officials cannot be expected, as I have already said, to do the work of others for nothing, unless they get the pay for their old posts in the meantime. That this network of vacation leave, full pay and half-pay, is so intertwined with official life here and elsewhere that everything, even reformers like Mr Whitehead, must give way to it.

That however willing Governor Robinson might be, and I believe is, to economise the expenditure and to meet popular viows generally, the manner in which salaries and half-salaries interlock each other would, I am afraid, be an effectual bar to reform.

That, at the same time, the question of the so-called position of Superintendent of the Water Police cannot be tied up in this way, and Mr Whitehead might have a shot at this anomaly... That I have a notion this so-called appointment is at variance with the Police Ordinance, but as it has not been acted upon, although gazeited, no positive harm has perhaps been done.

Being unable to take any but liquid food h grew so weak that he was barely able to walk Then his heart troubled him once more, and, to quote his own words, ' As I sat in my chair I could hear my heart thumping as if tomebody was pounding me on the back. This showed that the heart had too much work on hand and was struggling under it like a horse trying to carry two men. I got very little sleep at night, he says, and would lie awake for hours tossing about on the bed. This sort of thing is very wearing, and we are not surprised to learn that he lost flesh until little was left of him but skin and bons. cheeks,' he says, sank in until they almost drawn together, and people shook their heads and predicted that my time in this world was nearly up. Still I had all confidence in my physician and kept on taking his medicine. From first to last I took some forty or fifty bottles of it (of all kinds) without benefit.

· Finally one day the the doctor sounded my lungs and asked me if any of our family died of consumption. He said that the heart palpitation was caused by dyspepsia. Then he said I had helter take further advice; he could do no more for mo. This was after nine months of his treatment. I gave up all hopes of getting better, and, indeed, no one expected me to. It was now winter again, December, 1890 One day I found a little book or pamphlet in the honse, that I had never seen before. It was about a medicine called Mother Seigel's Syrup, and described a case like mine having been cured by it. Without going into all my hopes

I took a second and began to eat solid food, which agreed with After this I never looked behind me, though my recovery was a work of time, for I was very much reduced. I stuck to the medicine, and with good reason, and at last got back to my work, strong and well, and have remained so ever St. Louis, Mo. since. When I went back to the works the foreman and others gathered round me and saked what had wrought the wonderful change. I answered. Mother Seigel's Syrup had wrought i

The dector was right in saying that the apparent heart trouble in Mr Askew's case arose from dyspepsia, for dyspepsia was his only nilment.
And if he had used Mother Seigel's Syrup in February, 1890, he would have had no tale to tell, for he would have been all right directly. As it is we are glad that after he did try it he had no relapse. He never looked behind him.
